Dear name,

Have you ever wondered about becoming a foster parent, but haven't yet taken the next step? For many prospective parents, the logistics of balancing work and home life can feel daunting. Maybe it's time to see yourself in a new light – as a foster parent with the kind of support most families can only imagine.

We've partnered with Orangewood Foundation's Youth Connected Program to spread the news about Samueli Academy's new college-style housing model for local foster youth. Through an innovative new approach to fostering, Samueli Academy will offer its students a college-type dorm from Sunday night to Friday afternoon. During weekends, holidays, vacations, and other special events, students will live with their local foster families. Foster parents will provide support for their youth throughout the week like any full-time at-home relationship – available for advice, listening, and just being there.

To begin the process of learning more, and see The Orange County Register's recent front page coverage of the program, visit <https://orangewoodfoundation.org/ycp/>.
